Island Cuisine

Privacy Policy

Policy edition · November 28, 2026 (revised)

This notice covers the Island Cuisine website, all order inquiries, customer support, and our advertising and social channels.

Information we receive

We collect contact, billing, event, delivery, order and transaction details and your communications. Devices and connected services may supply browser, network and activity data. Facebook and Instagram lead forms provide information you submit under Meta’s own policies.

When you order online, our website can keep your bag on your device. We record the choices, contact details, terms edition and initials submitted at checkout. PayPal handles payment credentials. Our inquiry forms do not retain full card numbers.

Use and sharing

We use information to answer inquiries, check availability, quote and fulfill orders, process payments, support customers, keep financial and legal records, prevent fraud and improve our services and advertising. We do not sell or rent personal information.

Hosting, payment, communication, delivery, analytics and advertising providers and professional advisers receive information needed for their work. We may disclose information as legally required or to protect people, property or rights. The calendar on our homepage shows dates and booking status. Customer identities, order details and event locations stay private.

Cookies and communications

We save your bag in this browser. A customer cookie lets you reopen your orders on this device for up to one year. Clearing site data may remove your bag and access to past orders from this browser.

Our hosting provider uses a short-lived cookie to protect the site from bots. Staff sign-in uses a separate one-hour cookie.

We advertise on Facebook and Instagram. Activity on those platforms is subject to their privacy policies. This storefront does not currently use Meta Pixel or Google Analytics.

You can unsubscribe from promotional messages or contact us. We may still send updates about your order.

Retention, security and choices

We keep information as reasonably needed for service, records, disputes, agreements and legal obligations. We use reasonable safeguards. No system is completely secure.

Contact us to ask about your data, request access, correct a mistake, request deletion subject to recordkeeping duties or withdraw marketing consent. We may verify your identity.

Children, external sites and updates

Our ordering and inquiry services are not directed to children under 13. We do not knowingly collect personal information directly from them. External services control their own policies, content and security.

Applicable Guam and United States laws govern this notice. We publish a dated revision when our practices change.
